Clerk's trial is remanded until May

Cardiff Township's clerk treasurer appeared in provincial court in Minden last Wednesday facing four counts of theft, but the case was remanded to May 6.

Marie Vardy was charged with four counts of theft under $1000 by Apsley OPP following an investigation which began March 20. She has been suspended from her duties with the township pending the court's decision.

Municipal officials have asked police not to release any details of the case.

Minden Legion has good start

Minden will officially have its own branch of the Royal Canadian Legion as soon as a charter is received from the national governing body. The drive to create a Legion branch in Minden culminated on Monday night with the announcement that 49 charter members had signed up, more than three times the number required for the formation of a new branch under Legion by-laws.

A total of 102 people signed the register at Monday night's meeting, the main purpose of which was to demonstrate to district legion officials that Minden could meet the requirements of application for a branch charter.

On hand to conduct the meeting were district commander Paul Hycha, who acted as chairman; zone commander Mel Robertson, zone secretary Mabel Brannigan, district secretary Sylvia Sisson, and Anson, Hindon and Minden reeve Sinc Nesbitt.

From the outset it was clear that the community would be successful in its bid to start a new Legion branch. Only 15 charter members were required, but more than 30 were on hand for the proceedings.

Hycha began the meeting by reading a letter from Joan Irish, president of the Haliburton Legion branch 129, in which she pledged her support for the new venture and offered to help out in any way she could. He then restated the basic requirements for the formation of a new Legion branch, the most important of which is that a prospective branch must find 15 charter members who are not members of other Legion branches. Once a new branch is official chartered, members of other Legion branches may transfer to the new branch if they wish.

Legion by-laws also required the election of a slate of officers for the fledgling branch who will serve until a charter is received from national headquarters. Once the branch is officially chartered, a formal election can be called at which all members can vote. At Monday's meeting, only the charter members were allowed to vote, and as it turned out, not ballots were required. While many of the charter members were nominated for the interim slate of officers, most declined, and those who chose to accept the nominations found themselves in positions of responsibilities.

Tony Samarillo accepted the post of president, at least until the charter is received. Others on the new executive are: Mike Maher, first vice president; Doug Seath, second vice president; Vivian Seath, secretary; Ray Cox, treasurer; and directors Ollie Olpana, Dave McAdam, Arnold Schroter, Frank Sargeant, Frank Dunsford, Don Davidson and Muriel Bird.

While it is not yet known when the new Minden Legion branch will receive its charter, Hycha said he

Minden hotel plans are going well

Plans for a destination hotel in Minden are "continuing at great speed", but until final zoning and official plan changes are approved, the developers are biding their time before they give it the big push.

Kathy and John Stainton, owners of the Brown Owl Restaurant on Highway 35, are planning a 39-room hotel with indoor pool, whirlpool sauna, exercise and weight room, a 24-seat pub and two 75-seat banquet halls to be located on the six acres of land behind their popular restaurant. Yet before they go ahead with hiring an architect and builders for "The County House at Minden", they want to wait until the April 30 meeting at the Minden council chambers to see if there are any objections which can't be settled.

The hotel requires a new zoning and change to the official plan and Minden council has called the meeting at the end of the month to hear the views of anyone owning property within 400 feet of the proposed development, and others who may have objections or support to voice.

"Quite a lot of thought went into the site planning in order to minimize the impact of the development on neighbouring property owners," the couple says in a press release. "Planting trees and shrubs, in conjunction with carefully land-

Social services branch starts helping the needy

As the director of the new County of Haliburton Social Services Department, George Davidson approaches his work with a healthy blend of realism and optimism.

When people phone his office, he knows it's because they want money, not some friendly little chat over tea. He is the provider of money—he knows it, and the people who apply for it know it. "I'm a realist."

The new County of Haliburton Social Services Department officially started doing business on April 1. Heading the new department is director George Davidson, left, while Morris Honeyman and Mike Wood do the leg work and Linda Oitment runs the office.

Yet if it were that simple, all he'd do all day is process applications.

"I'm also an optimist. Most people want to do well but many of them lack the skills," he adds, and it's also part of his job to make sure they know what programs are available to help them get those skills. "We have to build up those deficits over time."

The county officials who hired Davidson in February are sure to appreciate this attitude. Whenever a cheque leaves the social services office in the basement of the county registrar's building, the county is the one footing 20 per cent of the bill. However, they too would like to think that those cheques are only meant to tide people over for a short period of time. The shorter the period of time people need assistance the better, and the situation local politicians dread is a family constantly depending on social services cheques rather than on income from jobs.

'Most people want to do well, but many of them lack the skills'

Social services is a nice way to refer to welfare, a word which has grown to have a stigma attached to it, both by the people who need it and the people who pay for it. And it would be misleading to think that all Davidson and his staff of three—case workers Mike Wood and Morris Honeyman, office administrator Linda Oitment—do is hand out welfare cheques. There is more to helping people in need than simply providing them with a cheque once a month, and indeed, that's why the new department was set up in the first place.

Until April 1st of this year, individual municipalities were responsible for administering welfare. This task often fell on the shoulders of someone who had many other responsibilities to fulfill and who wasn't trained fully for this job. People had to come into the municipal office, fearful everyone would know why, and sit in an office answering questions about how much money they have in the bank, what their assets are and what their last job was.

It wasn't that individual administrators didn't do their job well, or properly, but there was no uniformity within the county. The township you lived in may have had a lot to do with how much, if any, money you got and whether any home visits were made to ensure you really did need it.

There had been a lot of discussion over the years about a consolidated welfare system, but it wasn't until Warden Harry Davis brought it up as a vote at a county council meeting last summer that an agreement was reached, in principle, to work with the Ministry of Community and Social Services (COMSOC) in setting up such a program. The recorded vote was 14 to 5 in favour of consideration of a county welfare system.

When council decided to go ahead with the plan formally, the next step was to find a trained and professional staff to operate the new department. Because of some problems municipal administrators had in the past with people who got angry if their application wasn't approved, it was decided to hire someone from outside the county. This person wouldn't know any future recipients nor would they

Seatbelts

April is seatbelt awareness month, and officers at Minden detachment have been keeping a sharp eye out for drivers and passengers who have failed to buckle up. In the past week, nine people have been charged with seatbelt violations.

The evidence in favour of seatbelt use is substantial. An analysis of traffic accidents that occurred in Ontario in 1985 shows that there were 114 deaths for every 10,000 collisions for drivers and passengers who were not belted, but only five deaths per 10,000 collisions for vehicle occupants who were wearing their seat belt assemblies.

Two car accident

Four people were injured Saturday when two cars collided on the Bethel Church Road. The vehicles, driven by Joseph Bath, age 18, of Minden, and Susanne Long, age 17, of Haliburton, collided on the crest of a hill at about 12:45 p.m. Total damage to both vehicles is estimated at $9,000. Both drivers were charged with failing to keep left of centre on a hill.

A 26 year old Renfrew man was trapped in his vehicle for more than an hour on Monday after it left Highway 503 west of Tory Hill and struck a rock cut.

Roger Leith lost control of his 1986 Jimmy when he swerved to avoid a deer at about 12:45 p.m.

Glamorgan's Fire Department and the Haliburton Ambulance Service used block and tackle and the Jaws of Life to extricate Leith, who was taken to Haliburton Hospital and later transferred to St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated in excess of $15,000.

Investigating officer Const. Dave McMartin credits Leith's survival with the fact that he was wearing a seatbelt.

Jail sentences

Two Haliburton men received jail sentences for breach of probation when they appeared in provincial court in Minden last Wednesday.

Peter J. Austin, age 23, received 60 days in jail consecutively on each of our counts of breach of probation, and another 60 days for escaping custody. The total sentence was 10 months in jail. Austin's probation order began in January, 1986 and continues to December, 1988.

Danny R. Griffin, age 23, received 60 days in jail on each of two counts of breach of probation. Griffin's probation concluded prior to his court appearance.

Suspended driver fined

A 22 year old Dwight man was fined $400 for driving while his licence was under suspension when he appeared in provincial court in Minden last Wednesday. Andreas Schollig had his licence suspended in a 1986 conviction for dangerous driving in York Region.

The waters of Raven Lake in Sherborne Township have begun backing up behind a new dam completed last month by the Ministry of Natural Resources. It replaces a dam at the same site which was deteriorating badly.

Raven Lake dam rebuilt

Raven Lake in Sherborne Township has begun to fill up again, now that a new dam is in place at the south end of the lake. Water levels in Raven were drastically reduced after Labour Day last year so that the old control dam, dating from the 1930's, could be replaced with a new structure. The low water levels — down about eight feet — left large expanses of lake bottom exposed and cut short the fishing and boating season for most of the lake's 130 or so seasonal residents.

The old concrete dam, which was once the site of a logging control structure but which for many decades has been used to control water levels for cottaging, had badly deteriorated before replacement work began last fall. The new dam was built at a cost of about $200,000.

Raven, with an area of about 1,250 acres, is not expected to return to its normal level until sometime in June, although the refilling process has been underway since late March.

The low water levels gave Sherborne Township workers an opportunity to give the public launching site adjacent to highway 35 just south of Dorset a face lift. Several new docks have been added to serve the scores of water access property owners who park at the Raven Lake landing and boat to their cottages throughout the summer and fall. Navigation in the area of the docks and launching ramp has also been improved by cottage owners through the removal of stumps and deadheads in the shallow landing area which frequently bent pro-pellers.

hoped it could be obtained within two months, and promised to be on hand to officially present it to the Minden branch.

As for what to call the new branch, reeve Sinc Nesbitt suggested it not be officially named until after the charter is received, at which point all members would have an opportunity to have a say in the choice of name. In the meantime, the fledgling organization will be known as the Royal Canadian Legion Minden Branch.

Home visits better for everyone

know the director.

They found Davidson working at the Kingston department of social services co-ordinating its various employment programs. He had a social services diploma from Sir Sandford Fleming College in Peterborough, a Bachelor of Arts in psychology and sociology from Carleton University, experience in child welfare at Rocky Mountain House in Alberta, and six months' experience with the Oshawa Children's Aid Society.

On his part, Davidson welcomed the opportunity to come to Haliburton County primarily because it would be a challenge to start up its first social services department and "put my philosophies and ideas to work." Besides that, his wife Judy's maiden name is Sisson, and as such a name connotes in the Haliburton area, many of her relatives live in the West Guilford area. With plenty of family already here and others close by, the "natural beauty of the area" helped win over the Davidsons.

Since he started work at the beginning of February, the main goal of his office has been to ensure the cheques would be in the mail for the first of April, the day the department officially took over control of the county reins.

The two case workers, who are both trained in social services, began visiting people's homes immediately, taking the first step towards helping the system run more smoothly and efficiently.

Not only do the home visits allow the case workers to see the living conditions of people applying for assistance, but it also makes the applicant feel more at ease. What is always important to remember, Davidson says, is "I don't believe anyone is on welfare because they want to be."

Transportation is always a big problem in this county, and by having either Wood or Honeyman visit people at their homes, welfare clients don't have to worry about how they're going to get into town, or who will take care of their children when they do.

It's also more relaxing for the client, who quite often is nervous about the application and the questions they will be asked. With an environment more conducive to conversation, Davidson says the case workers are better able to discover exactly what the problem is and how it can best be addressed.

The applicants respond to the more friendly approach in kind, and when the case workers come for a visit, are often asked to sit down and talk over tea.

"Most people have also been as honest as the day is long," says Davidson, who admits there are the five per cent of the applicants who try to mislead the workers on purpose. Yet when most people go out of their way to be helpful and informative, Davidson does not believe others should judge the system on the errant five per cent.

Having to ask for assistance is very hard for most people, especially in a county known for its resident's self-sufficiency in good times and bad. Often, the social services department is seen as the last resort.

"Making do is an honourable concept but there's a limit," says Davidson, admiring people's ability to "make do" with as little as possible for as long as possible. But when there's suffering on account of deprivation, receiving a cheque from the county "will improve the quality of life."

The policies and procedures his office follows are

Bob English of the Haliburton ambulance service takes a call on a phone that can be patched into a new radio system recently installed at the ambulance base in town. Part of the system can be seen on the wall in front of him. Its expanded range is a major improvement over the system it replaces.

Emergency radio system: New equipment means better co ordination

There hasn't been any fanfare, and most people may not be aware of it, but for the past several months a new radio system has been dispatching fire fighters and ambulance attendants all over Dysart et al and beyond from the ambulance base behind the Dysart arena in Haliburton. The system, purchased at a cost of more than $56,000, has enhanced the efficiency of emergency services in the community and made possible a degree of emergency co ordination that could not be matched by the equipment it replaced.

The radio system was jointly funded by Dysart et al and the federal government under a joint emergency planning program. It has enabled council to fulfill an obligation for a central emergency dispatching facility outlined in an emergency plan adopted by the municipality several years ago. The plan details who would be responsible for what in the event of a large scale emergency in the community such as would occur if a tornado swept through a populated area, an earthquake struck, a forest fire burned out of control, or an airliner crashed. The plan also includes an inventory of expertise and equipment in the community.

The new radio system consists of a 40 foot communications tower beside the ambulance hall, a wide band antenna, a broadband base station radio unit, a remote control console, and a back up base radio unit and antenna. Unlike the old radio system it replaces, the new system will operate even if hydro and Bell Canada services are disrupted. A portable generator carried in the ambulance service's emergency van can be hooked up, allowing a radio dispatcher to talk from the base station, through the 40 foot emergency antenna, to fire, ambulance and road crews all over the municipality. The system also includes a telephone patching device that makes it possible to pass a call from a portable radio unit anywhere in the area to a person at the end of a phone line.

Under normal circumstances, the radio at the ambulance base broadcasts through a 240 foot tower owned by the Ministry of Transportation and Communications on the top of Skyline Hill above Haliburton. With this tower carrying the signal, it is possible to talk to other ambulance and emergency services all over central Ontario and south to the shore of Lake Ontario. There are no longer any 'dead spots' in which an ambulance or fire vehicle would be out of range of the radio dispatcher.

As well as facilitating ambulance dispatch from the ambulance base in Haliburton on two channels, the system includes a common fire channel, a fire marshall's channel, two Huntsville MTC channels and one Bancroft MTC channel. It is now possible for a road crew to call in from anywhere in the municipality, which adds greatly to safety. The base station also has a device that activates the pagers carried by ambulance crews and fire fighters. Fire calls come in on two phones at the ambulance hall as well as to the fire hall and the dispatch facility staffed by Wayne and Dorothy Wood. A third phone is available for patch calls through the base radio system.

Dysart's emergency van carries a radio tuned to the same frequency as the base radio, which enables the van to function as a mobile command post in the event of a major emergency. As well, each ambulance carries portable radios which can be patched through the vehicle radio and back to the base station, so attendants can remain in contact with the ambulance hall and through it, with the hospital, even if they are some distance away from the vehicle.

To house the new radio system as well as the emergency van, Dysart et al last year spent about $37,000 on a two bay addition to the ambulance hall. As well as a new radio room and office, the addition includes a meeting room which could be used by officials in the event of a major emergency.

Complimenting the improved radio system is the fact that the Dysart ambulance service now has some of the best trained volunteer and full time staff in the province. Nine of the ambulance volunteers, who are paid only a dollar an hour when they are on standby duty, have recently completed a 21 month college course to become Emergency Medical Care Attendants. The course, which was offered by Sir Sandford Fleming College for the first time in Haliburton, included 600 hours of theory and 200 hours of clinical experience and hands-on training in various departments of area hospitals. A total of 20 people took the course, and the top four marks were achieved by Haliburton ambulance staff. In June, the attendants will write a provincial examination consisting of two, three and a half hour written tests and two practical tests in which mock victims must be treated and transported, under the critical eye of examiners. Those who successfully complete the final examine will receive the provincial certification required of all full-time ambulance attendants in Ontario.

There are now 15 people on the Dysart ambulance staff, including the manager and the dispatcher, and experience ranges from two years to more than 12 years.

New helicopter services hospital

A new helicopter ambulance is now in place to serve Haliburton and other communities from Buttonville airport. The helicopter, carrying the same Bandage 1 name as its predecessor, is a BK-117 turbine-powered aircraft manufactured in Canada. It has better range, speed and fuel efficiency than Jet Ranger model it replaces.

Cruising speed of the new Bandage 1 is 241 km/hr (150 mph) and maximum speed is 278 km/hr (173 mph). It has a maximum range of 682 km (424 miles).

Bandage 1 is stationed at Buttonville, north of Toronto, and operates mainly in southern Ontario. It can carry two stretcher patients and two attendants in addition to two crew members, or one stretcher patient and up to four attendants.

Back up for the Bandage 1 is provided by a Bell 212 helicopter. It replaces a Bell 206L single engine helicopter which could not be flown at night.

As well as being able to fly at night both the BK-117 and the Bell 212 can fly in inclement weather and over water.

Air ambulance service in the north east and North west also have been improved, and all helicopter ambulances in the province can now provide 24 hour service.

The air ambulance is called to Haliburton Hospital more than a dozen times a year on average, principally to carry heart patients to intensive care units, but Bandage 1 also transports seriously injured accident victims and others experiencing medical emergencies that require highly sophisticated care.

Hotel will create employment

scaped earth berms, will obscure the hotel from adjacent properties and envelope the building site in a country inn setting.

"Access to the hotel will be from South Water Street, behind the Brown Owl Restaurant. We feel that this entrance would be the most suitable. Other entrances, such as from Teasdale Street or through the parking lot of the restaurant would cause problems for our neighbours, and because of this, were quickly dismissed."

The Staintons have received many favourable comments from both other local business people and their customers, who would like to see a hotel built in Minden.

"Minden's always been a drive-through," said John Stainton in a telephone interview. Most people passing through Minden are usually on their way to someplace else since there are no hotels in the village.

"Many people in general and most business operators have long realized that for the Minden Area to grow and prosper, a destination point must be established," the press release continues. "The County House at Minden will do just that. The spin off to the local economy will be substantial."

The Staintons estimate that between 30 to 40 jobs will be created and most of them, if not all if possible, will be filled by local people. Even the construction work and supplies are expected to come from Minden if feasible. As to staff who will work with the guests, "one of the main requirements will be a desire to work for the general public to insure a pleasant stay."

Local people will not only benefit from the jobs created, Stainton says, but all the facilities will be welcome in the area as well, since the nearest place to hold a meeting or banquet, besides the top floor of the community centre, is the PineStone Inn.

"There's a need for virtually everything," he says, pointing to people's fondness for swimming and exercise in general. Many people have also told him they'd like a quiet place to go to have a drink after work, and the "intimate" 24-seat pub is expected to fill that need.

If everything goes smoothly, the Staintons hope construction will begin in late summer/early fall and will be ready to open in the spring of next year.

Commitment

Although most people prefer to think they'll never need it, there is no doubt that a good local ambulance service is an important link in the health care system. It is reassuring to know that emergency help is a close as the telephone, and because we know it, most of us forget about it, or at least seldom pause to reflect on who makes the system work. Provincial taxes may fund the ambulance service, but a dedicated corps of local volunteers staffs it, and without them, the most sophisticated and costly emergency care equipment would be useless.

The degree of community commitment among the local volunteer ambulance crew is daunting. When they are on standby they are paid only a dollar and hour, and when they respond to a call, their pay is less than eight dollars an hour for the time they are actually in the ambulance. If that seems like more than volunteer pay, consider that ambulance attendants, whether volunteer or full time, require hundreds of hours of training, and that they literally take other people's lives in their hands. As well, consider that a call in the middle of the night can rob a volunteer of several hours sleep, although his pay may be only a few dollars if the call he responds to is a local one.

There is another price to pay for being an ambulance attendant, and that is stress. There is an element of excitement whenever a call comes in, but it is tempered by fear, and the realization that the call may be more than routine, that some distressing horror may have to be faced and dealt with coolly and professionally while the seconds of someone's life tick rapidly away. It is not a responsibility that many people would willingly assume, and yet there is no shortage of volunteers in Dysart. Recently, nine of them completed a 21 month college course that included 600 hours of theory and 200 hours of clinical training, and four of them took the top spots in their class of 20. The hours they put in were their own, but it is the community which benefits.

There are many ways to serve society, but few of them are more important than caring for the ill and injured. Local ambulance attendants display a degree of commitment which deserves to be recognized not only by those they help, but by all of us who may someday have reason to be grateful for their presence.

Be generous

Haliburton Hospital's expansion fund is growing steadily toward its goal of $240,000. By Tuesday, the cash total raised so far stood at $98,000, not including pledges from service clubs which will come in over the next few months. The total is gratifying to campaign organizers, and they hope the momentum will not slow as final plans are made for the 18 bed facility.

There are, of course, many worthwhile places to send the dollars we can spare for charitable donations. But few of them will benefit the community as tangibly as the continuing care unit. If you haven't yet made a donation, consider doing so either directly, or by supporting some of the many community events coming up this year with proceeds going to the hospital fund.

There's nothing quite like an all-Ontario final to excite local hockey fans, and Haliburton is in the middle of one again. The local OMHA Midgets are deadlocked at two wins apiece in their series against Wheatley, with the pivotal game set to go this Saturday night at the Dysart arena. A win by Haliburton would give the local boys a decided advantage for the final two scheduled games of the series in Wheatley over the Easter weekend. And local fans can play a substantial role in helping to bring the championship home. If you're a hockey fan, be in the stands on Saturday night and lend your vocal support. It could make the difference, and help Haliburton preserve its reputation as one of the best little hockey towns in Ontario.

Swimming program is returning

from Echo readers

To the Editor:

Late in the fall of '86 a letter appeared in your paper lamenting the demise of the swimming program traditionally offered to Learning Disabled elementary school children, by the Association For Children With Learning Disabilities. The letter stated, "it was not for lack of funds; but rather, a lack of volunteers to man the event, that had shelved things for the season."

That letter prompted a trickle of phone calls which eventually led to the re-establishment of "tradition".

Once again the citizens of Haliburton gave unselfishly in the face of need!

Wayne McGilvray of the PineStone Inn unhesitatingly offered his pool an hour a week for ten weeks. Thirteen adult volunteers came forward to work with the children in the water, and provide transportation. Vicki Ross of the Haliburton Red Cross Swim program provided equipment and much encouragement. The money to pay the instructress came from a local organization.

Citizens of Haliburton, "congratulations" and "thank you" from the eleven special children who had the opportunity to learn new skills and experience the delight of a constant series of successes in the water!

Sincerely,
The "Kids" and Dawn Brohman
(Pres. Haliburton A.C.L.D.).

Excellent coverage

To the Editor:

Thanks so much for the excellent coverage of our Skating Carnival last Sunday. It's always extremely thrilling for the skaters who appear in pictures but of course impossible to include everyone. Your commentary, therefore, does that and brings alive the carnival to those who were unable to attend.

We appreciate your time and effort.

Sincerely,
Toni Carr
Minden Skating Club Carnival Chairman.

To the Editor:

The Echo's April 1 article on Sports Franchise makes fascinating reading. On one hand, one can only applaud the initiative, ingenuity and hard work that have gone into creating and marketing this game. On the other hand some of the underlying assumptions, images and attitudes that the game rests on and fosters are less admirable. Ms. Perkins writes that the game is for those who like "the opportunity to bend your opponents under your thumb as you gain wealth and power" and that "It's easy to see how the competitive side of people's nature gets a little mercenary push - when you're talking in the millions of dollars you could tend to get a little cut-throat". This sounds like a game based on selfishness, greed and the treatment of other people as objects to be manipulated, violently if necessary. The interesting question is are these the value that make our world a healthier and better place in which to live and do we want to encourage such attitudes?

Right now the best farm land in Canada is being rapidly swallowed up by "developers" eager to make millions without a thought of where tomorrow's food will be grown. The gypsy moth which is devastating millions of acres of forest and which will soon be here in Haliburton is the result of the greed and carelessness of one man who wanted to corner the market on the silk trade. The U.S. power companies (aptly named) refuse to do anything about the causes of acid rain because they put profit ahead of the environment. The Great Lakes are being poisoned by chemical companies who care more about money than the drinking water needs of the next generation. In professional sport we see an increasing amount of violence because winning at any price is all the club owners care about. Toy companies devote more and more money to selling war toys. We are increasingly surrounded by evidence of greed and its effects and of an "us versus them" mentality. There's not a lot to indicate that all of this is making the world a better place. Pierre Berton recently remarked that if things continue as they are he doesn't expect the world as we know it to be here for his grandchildren to grow up into.

The images and attitudes that games promote can have a profound effect on our thinking. (Consider Richard Nixon's constant references to

FEIR PLAY

The Municipality of Dysart et al employees were sweeping the street one day and they had the snow plows out the next. This is just the kind of spring weather we have been having here lately. Just when everyone seemed to be thinking about getting the lawn mower out of the garage, along comes one of the biggest snow falls of the season to make us forget that spring ever existed. At time of writing which is on Saturday morning most of that snow is still with us and a bit of rain is falling. The snow storm that hit us on Tuesday March 31 was one of the worst of the season in more ways than one. It was hard to get around on foot as it was very slippery and vehicles were stuck all over the place because the snow was wet and it made the side roads and highways quite greasy. Looking on the brighter side of things, with each day that passes we can notice more sunshine and it makes one feel like getting outside whenever they can. After the long cold winter and dreary days with its snow and cold weather the welcome sunshine appears to bring on a new light and a new part of the year. Why not get out and enjoy it now and in the summer that lies ahead?

Nancy's Flowers of Haliburton has recently been accepted as a member of Florists' Transworld Delivery Association (FTD), the worldwide flowers-by-wire delivery organization. As a new FTD member florist Nancy's Flowers can now provide delivery of fresh flowers, plants and other gifts to almost anywhere in the world, often within hours.

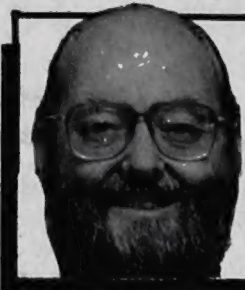

When we start to think about making donations to this organization or a club it is my opinion that a donation to the Canadian Cancer Society is a must and should be put right up there at the top of our list. Cancer as we all know ranks right up there with heart disease as the number one killer in Canada to-day. If we are to find a cure for this most dreaded disease money must come from you and I to make sure that everything is being done so that the goal can be reached. April is Cancer Month so please give when a canvasser calls.

Jeff Stamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Stamp of Haliburton, had the privilege of visiting with Bernie and Heather Nicholls recently in Los Angeles. Besides seeing the Los Angeles Kings play at the Forum, Jeff had the opportunity to see John McEnroe play in a tennis tournament. Celebrating his 15th birthday at this time wasn't the only special occasion on the menu for Jeff. He also had the pleasure of being introduced to movie actress Connie Stevens.

I received a short note in the mail recently from Madeline Jackson, a former resident of Haliburton. She lived on the Harburn Road for awhile and later on moved into the village. In her letter she mentioned that it seemed like only yesterday that she was canvassing for the Red Cross in Haliburton. This will be her 10th year at Sutton Place in Toronto and she wishes to be remembered to all her friends in Haliburton and surrounding area.

POINTS OF VIEW

A luncheon party nightmare

The View From Here

Harvey Clarke

It wasn't a very fancy party. Just a few of her friends over for a couple of tables of bridge. But she went to the trouble of making up that special tuna salad they all liked the last time.

She put the finishing touches on it and went over to the sink to rinse her hands. When she turned around, she found the cat was nibbling from the edge of the salad dish!

She picked him up by the scuff of the neck, called him a naughty cat, and threw him angrily out onto the back porch... just as the front doorbell rang. The first of her guests.

She grabbed a spoon and smoothed out the nibble marks in the surface of the salad, undid her apron and tossed it on a chair, and ran to answer the door — almost in one continuous motion — and never gave it another thought.

It was a good, cheerful gossip afternoon in the company of seven of her very best friends, and she was happy, but weary, as she cleaned things up afterwards. She was humming quietly to herself as she gathered up the garbage bags, and took them out to the container on the back porch.

She couldn't see too well over her armload, so she almost stepped on the body of the cat — stretched out, feet in the air — by the garbage can... definitely dead.

Her first thought was sorrow. Her second was: salmonella! Were the lives of her friends — and herself — in danger!

If she told anyone what had happened, she would be involved in a tuna scandal of her own! But these were her friends, and so much had been written about bad tuna that she was afraid for them as well as herself.

So she swallowed her pride and called each of her seven friends and confessed to her shortcut when the cat had licked the salad plate from which they had all eaten during the afternoon.

The first call was the most difficult, and she found she was blushing on the telephone, even though she dialled her best friend first. It got easier as she called the others, and in each case she gave them the same advice:

She was leaving it to them, she said, but she knew what the doctor had ordered when her sister-in-law got salmonella last summer, and when she had completed her calls to all of her guests, she was planning to go to the emergency room at the hospital and have her stomach pumped out...

It was upsetting, physically and mentally, because most of them arrived at the hospital at the same time. Nobody really knew what to say to each other. But when she was in being treated, she was quite sure the rest of them would have had something to say that she really didn't want to hear...

She was feeling weak and rather blue when she finally got home and put her car in the garage, annoyed with herself for not remembering to put on the porch light before she left.

As she fumbled through her purse for her keys, she was startled to hear footsteps coming up the walk behind her. She was more than a little relieved to recognize her next door neighbor.

"How did your little bridge party go?" the neighbor asked, for openers. "There sure were a lot of cars parked along here when I got home."

"I knew you had a lot of company, so I didn't want to bother you," he raced on, his words tripping over each other.

"I'm afraid I have some bad news. When I pulled in my driveway, your tomcat ran in front of me and I hit it with the car."

"He was dead when I got out to check, so I brought his body over to your place, but there were so many people there I didn't know — and I didn't want to spoil your party."

"So I left him on your back porch, but I guess you haven't noticed yet. I was sure you'd want to give him a decent burial."

Some of you may have heard this little tale before. Perhaps the person who told it to you claimed to be a relative or a friend of the lady in the story.

If you hadn't heard it before, I hope you got a kick out of it. It's another "urban legend," a modern form of folklore, and like so many of these items, it has a slightly gruesome quality — a factor that I expect often helps make them more believable.

They come around from time to time, and often turn up in daily newspapers on holidays — when the experienced editors are away and their younger replacements are minding the store.

I've been collecting them since the early 50's, when one of the true classics turned up on the front page of The London Free Press the day after New Year's.

It was followed the very next day with an apology from the editor, who explained how it had "somehow" come over the newswire service, and had not been recognized as an old hoax by a young editor.

If you enjoy this sort of fun, I'll dig into my files from time to time for some of the better ones — those that are suitable for printing in the Echo.

Homemade bread worthy of effort

Sunny Side Up

Martha Perkins

The theory that necessity is the mother of invention was proved this past weekend in one of the most common of laboratories—my kitchen. On Sunday afternoon, I found myself with two leavened loaves of bread dough and an oven which wouldn't work. All that kneading and waiting as the bread rose couldn't be wasted and I struggled to think of a way to save my bread. It was then I noticed two logs of wood next to the fireplace and decided to experiment.

Even though bread takes hours to rise, once you have prepared it for the oven by brushing it with egg whites, you have to get it in the oven pretty quickly or it will start to fall. Seeing no other answer to my dilemma, I quickly went about preparing an instant oven.

Before I go any further, I must admit this isn't the first time I've had to improvise my bread making techniques. You see, I have no bread tins so I have to adapt recipes into free-form loaves—French sticks, baguettes, and my most-recent favourite, Italian feather bread. I can shape them into rectangles or circles and for a little variation, I add a little wholewheat flour.

There are many advantages to making your own bread, most noticeably, its taste. When you eat a loaf of bread made from scratch, you can actually notice it does have a taste, especially when it comes fresh out of the oven. Besides that, there's a great deal of satisfaction watching the loaf change from a course blob of flour to a smooth and shiny, golden brown, loaf of bread. With no preservatives, it may not last for months in your fridge, but then because it tastes so good, you never expect it to last more than a day or two anyway.

That's why, on Sunday afternoon, I was not going to be denied my loaf of freshly-baked bread, no matter how I baked it.

The fire now burning brightly, I took the first loaf from the pan, wrapped it in tinfoil and placed it on a rack above the flames where I thought it would be safe and warm. A few minutes later, when I opened the foil to check on my success, I found it black and smokey. So much for the first loaf.

With the second, and last, loaf, I decided to be a bit more careful and patient. There was no leftover bread in the fridge and this was my last chance.

Remembering back to my Girl Guide campfire days, I decided to use an old trick and wrap the loaf in wet newspaper first. The trick is the newspaper will protect the bread from intense heat and allow it to cook slowly and evenly.

Placing a sopping wet Echo onto a piece of tinfoil, and placing another piece of tinfoil between it and the loaf, I covered my last chance with another piece of tinfoil and hoped for the best.

When it came to putting it in the "oven", this time I avoided the flames and found a quiet little corner. Patience would now be the key to success. A few minutes later, when I went to check on its progress, I found a moist but unbaked loaf of bread.

Normal cooking time later, I lifted the tinfoil to find what looked like a familiar loaf of bread, albeit a steamy one, on top and what resembled a round lump of coal on the bottom. With Sunday dinner approaching rapidly, this was not the time to be picky so I salvaged the loaf by cutting off its bottom quarter.

What I had left was a rather unique loaf of bread, delicately flavoured with the taste of maple. Or was it birch?

Yes, that bread was eaten, and enjoyed too I might add. Perhaps it tasted better because to get to the table, it first had to go through the fires, so to speak. If necessity is the mother of invention, then it is also the mother of accommodating tastes.

PIC OF THE PAST

by Creighton Feir

At a time when Haliburton's business section is experiencing a season of change, it is interesting to note that some of the older main street buildings have remained easily recognizable, although the businesses within may have changed hands over the years. Most readers will remember, from left to right, the Star Cafe, operated by the late George Chu, the Molou Theatre, still a popular entertainment spot and the Hussey and Reynolds furniture store, which is now the location of Varty's Jewellery and Gifts. The miseries of a second winter

Northern Lights

Virginia Muenzel

That was quite an April Fool's joke Mother Nature played on us last week. As someone was quick to point out to me, I was just a big premature with my spring column. It's not that I didn't expect it. I kept saying we were going to have to pay for all that sunshine.

Still, it really hurt to have to drag out the winter gear again. My mitts were in the laundry. The insulated boots had been shoved to the back of the boot locker and replaced some neat little puddle jumpers.

That was bad enough. Then we had to shovel our way off the back deck. Plod through snow over the boot tops to the car. Then, the cruelest blow of all. We had to hire someone to plow out the driveway. My car was stuck. And the good old faithful Jeep (remember her) had suffered a fatal seizure of the gears. She will not plow again. She has been donated to a mechanic who promised to transplant any vital working organs to another needy vehicle.

Needless to say, I was not first in line to get plowed out. Consequently, I didn't get to where I was going, along with a lot of other people. This is called "found time." One is supposed to use it constructively to accomplish something wonderful they wouldn't have otherwise been able to do. So, after digging off the deck and unpinning the heavy wet snow from my car for the third time, I considered this fact. Pondered about what marvelous deed I would do. And proceeded to catch a cold.

Over the course of the next two days, I quickly noticed that everyone was about as depressed as I with the surprise weather. We were all trudging around as though those winter togs all weighed a ton. It was almost a relief when it began to rain. At least we knew this snowfall would melt quickly.

So here it is another week, and once again the snow is nearly gone. We all put away the shovels and got out the rakes. I've got this sudden urge to plant peas. I also made the mistake of stepping into the garden bed to check out the leaks. Did you know that overweight grandmas sink twice as fast as little kids?

But the leaks are ready to be dug. Spring is really here. Old man winter has had his last laugh. He might spit a few odd flurries on us, but he's blown his last blizzard for awhile. (Am I ever going to be in trouble if I'm wrong.)

the world as a football field.) Mrs. Fewster-Yan and her colleagues are a good example of how dedication and co-operation can do wonders in working towards a common goal. Wouldn't it be marvellous if she and her co-creators could put their minds together again to devise another game which would emphasize the very values their collective enterprise exemplifies - co-operation, consideration for other people and a dedication to the common good? Some such games already exist but Fewster-Yan and her co-workers have a chance and the ability to create a game which could make all of us winners.

The question is, do they want to play?

Echo stays in tune

To the Editor:

Another Pulitzer Prize winning story by Martha Perkins in the Echo of March 25 on Bob McCausland, Reeve of Glamorgan!

Fact is - the Echo's new updated - layout and type style is again in tune with the new aggressive image of the County.

As one of your hundreds of winter subscribers who only are up in the County for winter activities; because of your continuous copy information over the past four months, I too am looking forward to the cottage roads opening and being able to "see" the Explosion that is taking place all over the Highlands!

Liquor law objections

To the Editor:

We, the members of the Involved Parents Group of Gananoque, Lansdowne and District wish to oppose some of the recommendations of the Ontario Advisory Committee of Liquor Regulation released March 3, 1987 at Queens Park.

We too, would aim for "individual responsibility and moderation in the consumption of beverage alcohol". However, we believe that liberalization of liquor laws, specifically, extension of hours for licenced premises, patrons being allowed to bring their own beverage alcohol to restaurants, 24 hour room service and de-regulation of some Special Occasion Permits IS NOT RESPONSIBLE. Our area in Eastern Ontario spends its share of the estimated half billion dollars cost of alcohol abuse in the Health Care, Social Welfare, Law Enforcement and reduced productivity problems.

The legislation to reduce the drinking age from 21 to 18 to 19 a few years ago effectively put legal consumption of alcohol into the high school age group. In that age group, Peer Pressure dictates that if friends do it, it's o.k. for me (age 19 is not the measure). The same student Peer Pressure is resulting in alcohol consumption at the public school age level.

Our Community is only one of many which is suffering from the epidemic of underage drinking. In October, 1985, we lost three students in an alcohol related car crash.

At the Inquest of these deaths, the Coroner's Jury recommended that the drinking age be raised to 21 and that there be stricter controls on the sale of alcohol. The Leeds & Grenville Board of Education (November 25, 1985) passed three resolutions, 1) legal drinking age be raised to age 21, 2) the sale of beer and wine should not be permitted in grocery stores, 3) Government review lifestyle advertising of beer and wine.

In this Province now, millions of dollars are spent in prevention programmes for students and adults alike (VIP, SADD, Alcohol and Drug education, etc.). Many groups such as ours, have formed to find the ways to protect our children and ourselves from further pain and cost brought about by alcohol.

We believe that liberalized liquor laws do NOT "reflect the attitudes and expectations of the public" as Mr. Offer believes they do.

We feel so committed to opposing liberalization of liquor laws that we are also sending this letter to 240 weekly newspapers across Ontario.

Terry Tucker, President,
Involved Parents of Gananoque,
Lansdowne and District.

Government programs help build tourism

PARLIAMENT

by William C. Scott, MP

When the Progressive Conservative government came to office in September 1984, it inherited a multitude of economic problems left unresolved by the previous government. The results of the agenda for economic renewal introduced by our government are obvious, the creation of 675,000 jobs, and an unemployment rate of less than 10 percent in January 1987, to name just a couple.

Tourism, which is a vital part of our economy, is now worth more than $20 billion a year and represents 4 percent of Canada's Gross National

Midgets best of three begins Saturday

A win this Saturday night could put Haliburton's OMHA Midgets in a commanding position in their bid to bring home the all Ontario championship. The local boys remain tied with Wheatley after a two game road trip to the Leamington area community, setting the stage for a best of three series which will begin this Saturday night at the Dysart arena. A win for Haliburton would put Wheatley's back to the wall, although they would still have home ice advantage for games six and seven, scheduled for the Easter long weekend.

In Wheatley on Saturday night, Haliburton was in fine form, taking the play to their opponents. The defense, which had been weak in the series opening loss in Haliburton, was solid and proved to be a key factor in the outcome. Haliburton also got impressive goaltending from Scott Burke, who kept them in the game and helped force an overtime period in which the local boys took command.

Jaro Cooper put the first point on the board with 3:33 remaining in the first period of Saturday's game, assisted by Scott Nesbitt and Ted Paish.

Just 55 seconds into the second period, Scott Russell split the Wheatley defense and put Haliburton ahead 2-0, with help from Ron Perrin.

Haliburton's skated hard to protect their two goal lead, but the equally strong Wheatley club would not be denied forever. With 57 seconds left in the period they got through the defense and put the puck past Scott Burke to narrow Haliburton's lead to one.

In the third period Haliburton found itself short-handed a number of times, while Wheatley remained out of the box and at full strength. The odds favoured Wheatley in that situation, and they made them pay Paish and Nesbitt.

The win gave Haliburton a 2-1 lead in the series and an opportunity to win the series on home ice if they had added another victory on Saturday, but it was not to be. A combination of the long distance they had to travel, excitement and the pressure of battling Wheatley on their home ice, proved too much to overcome, and Sunday's game took on an entirely different character. Haliburton was tired, and it showed on the scoreboard, as the defense lapsed and the forwards failed to click.

Wheatley notched three goals in the first period as they took the ppaly to Haliburton.

In the second period Scott Russell narrowed the margin when he connected at 6:59 with help from Scott Nesbitt, but it was all Haliburton could pro-

The Debler Drillers dominated play in a match against Aurora on Sunday and went on to face Lindsay in the 'C' division final. A total of 28 teams participated in the three day tournament, which was the last one of the season at rinks in Haliburton and Minden.

Niagara Falls wins weekend's Coby Islanders tournament

A team from Niagara Falls went home from Haliburton $1000 richer on Sunday by winning the 'A' division championship of the annual Coby Islanders hockey tournament. The Niagara Falls club was one of 28 teams of players 19 years of age and older on hand for the tournament, which began Thursday night and was held at both the Dysart and Minden arenas.

Niagara Falls won top prize with a 5-0 defeat of Richmond Hill, whose players split $400 for their efforts.

In the 'B' division final, Lindsay Busters Tavern earned $500 with a 4-2 defeat of Bowmanville.

The 'C' division saw the Lindsay No Stars, one of 11 Lindsay clubs which participated in the tourney, defeat a local club, Dennis Debler Drilling, 3-1. Scott Hamilton was named star of the game for the Drillers.

In the 'D' division, Bobcaygeon skated to a 5-2 win over a team from Saintfield.

One of the best games of the tournament involved the Haliburton Sr. Huskies and Richmond Hill at the Dysart arena on Sunday afternoon. The teams were tied 2-2 at the end of regulation time and had to go to a shootout. In the end, Richmond Hill came out on the winning end of a 5-3 score.

The tournament filled many area accommodations and helped keep local restaurants busy.

It was the third and final tourney of the year involving adult players competing at the two local arenas.

Oldtimers win their way to finals

Haliburton's Oldtimers hockey club travelled to Gravenhurst last weekend and earned a berth in one of the division finals.

The local men — Larry Hartin, Willie Greuber, Stuart Baker, John Robinson, Frank Powers, Gary Brohman, Brian Black, Roy Hewitt, Roy Scott, Glen Scully and Jim Burke — played to a three-all tie in their first game of the tourney on Friday night against the Muskoka Antiques.

Scoring for Haliburton were Jim Burke, Roy Hewitt and Gary Brohman.

At noon Saturday the Haliburton men faced the Deep River Replays, and once again the match ended up a tie, although Haliburton was leading 4-3 with just 50 seconds to go. Notching the goals for Haliburton were Brian Black, Roy Hewitt, Jim Burke and Gary Brohman.

On Sunday morning Haliburton handed the Collingwood Oldtimers a 6-1 defeat, on goals by Hewitt with two, Frank Powers, Brohman, Burke and Glen Scully.

The win put Haliburton in the finals against Deep River. The game was even through most of regulation time, and the score stood at 2-2 with only minutes left, but the Deep River club proved a little too strong for the local men, who saw the tie evaporate when Deep River scored two unanswered goals and added a third into an empty net for a 5-2 win.

The tournament was the last of the season for the local oldtimers.

First-time bowlers win 'His and Her' tourney

By John Fountain

The team of Gary Chapman and Leanne Schlosser from Carnarvon Laners are this year's Zone Champs of the 'His & Hers' bowling tournament. This annual pins over average tournament is sponsored by the 1000 Lakes 5 Pin Bowlers' Association and has 18 couples participating in Carnarvon last Sunday from the three bowling centres of Carnarvon, Fenelon Falls and Lindsay.

Chapman and Schlosser are both first year bowlers and finished the tournament with an off, tying the score at the 6:45 mark with Haliburton two men short.

The teams remained deadlocked at the end of regulation time, necessitating a 10 minute overtime, non sudden death overtime period. Haliburton came out flying and made the best of it, as Ted Paish banged home the puck from close in at the 32 second mark. He was assisted on the play by Tom McLeod, who played a solid game throughout, and Scott Nesbitt, who had a three point night.

Wheatley failed to make any headway against Haliburton, and with 4:22 left in the extra frame, Ron Perrin got an insurance goal with help from duce as Wheatley went on to score three more and take a 6-1 win.

The game proved a costly one for Haliburton as Jaro Cooper sustained a broken wrist that will put him out of action for the rest of the series.

The teams will see action at the Dysart arena this Saturday night for what could prove to be the pivotal game. If Haliburton wins they have a solid chance of capturing the series on the road trip to Wheatley on Easter weekend. If they lose Saturday Wheatley will have a solid advantage, needing only one win on their own ice.

Popular bonspiel winds up season for Haliburton Seniors Curling Club

By Ed Picard

On March 26 the Haliburton Seniors Curling Club wound up a successful season with a bonspiel. Teams were picked out of a hat, and the winning combination was the team of Bruce Armstrong, Bill Mighton, Dorothy Baker and Jack MacDonald.

After the bonspiel, awards were presented to the top teams of the seasons two series. The winners of the first series "A" division were Bruce Armstrong, Billy Pickard, George Knoblock and Mary Stacey, followed by runners up Ed Pickard, Bruce McKay, Helen McCracken and Bob Aldridge. "B" division was won by Roy Nicholls, Betty Dionne, Mel Robertson and Velma Sine.

The second series winners in "A" division were Hilda Seeley, Lloyd Kramp, Betty Dionne and Jack MacDonald, with runners-up Ev. Harding, Helen McCracken, Bruce Armstrong and John Dobrzensky.

"B" Division winners were Don Clee, Eleanor Holmes, Mary Stacey and Stu Martin.

Following the presentations of the trophies and prizes, the curlers crossed the road to the Royal Canadian Legion, where they were treated to a roast beef dinner, prepared by the Legion's Ladies Auxiliary. All curlers agreed that it was a most enjoyable day.

This season the club had fifty-six curlers until Christmas, when the snowbirds went south, leaving us with forty-eight curlers for the balance of the season, along with a few spares. As a result of their active participation our financial picture was quite healthy and we were able to donate $400 to the Haliburton Hospital Expansion fund. We look forward to a bigger and better season next year and anyone who has reached the "Golden Years" (55 or over) is welcome to come and join the fun. Until then "Good Golfing."

New department's mandate is fairness

set out by the government, not the county, and when people apply for assistance, they know some questions will have to be asked. Bank accounts have to be shown, rent receipts produced, and many other questions must be answered and forms signed.

The system tries to be fair and equitable to all citizens of the county, Davidson says, and his office will "always try to make the system work for people instead of the other way around, in a way that doesn't remove dignity or invade privacy."

Privacy and confidentiality are very important in this department. Embarrassment should never be a reason to for people not to seek help, and by not having to be visibly associated with an office, people know they can receive help without anyone else knowing about it. "It's your business and their business what goes on," Davidson says.

Recognizing the need to treat assistance applicants as human beings, not third class citizens, is an integral part of the department but on the other hand, that healthy mix of realism is always present too.

Davidson, Wood and Honeyman are vigilant in their attempts to make sure no one takes advantage of the system. Since these people only give everyone else a bad name, it is in their best interest, and the system's, to make sure that only people in real need receive assistance.

"I don't think anyone should get the idea there's a lot of money," Davidson says of some people's impressions of those people who are being helped. Rather than the stereotyped fat, alcoholic person spending their days smoking cigarettes and watching soap operas on television, the typical person receiving help is not living a life of luxury at taxpayers' expense.

It must be remembered that when welfare was first introduced 40 years ago, it was designed to be temporary relief to tide people over between jobs. The amount of money is based on the lowest, base amount a person would need to survive. The rate has to be less than the minimum wage rate, because there has to be an incentive to work. It also does not do anything to help people pay off debts—if debts have been incurred before receiving assistance, the person has to find that money somewhere else. The assistance cheque is intended only to ensure they have a roof over their head as they try to get back to work.

For instance, two adults living in unheated accommodation will get $689 a month, ($8,268 a year), with the heat paid on top that, while a single employable person will receive $394 a month ($4,728 a year). Both figures are based on 1986 figures and the government usually increases payments by approximately five per cent a year to cover inflation.

"Picture any one of us trying to live on that kind of money," Davidson asks.

Of course, there are other types of benefits, such as OHIP, drug benefits, winter clothing allowances for children, subsidies for day care and senior citizens' accommodations.

Just as most people are honest about their financial predicament, Davidson has found that when people get assistance, the money is generally spent on what it was intended for. The $80 a mother receives for her child's winter clothing will in all likelihood, go strictly towards buying winter clothes.

"I wouldn't want people to think because someone grows up poor they aren't caring," Davidson says of the often erroneous stereotypes that go along with poverty. One just has to ask Alcoholic Anonymous or the Children's Aid Society, to know that abuse knows no socio-economic boundaries. Rich or poor, abuse of oneself or those around you, can happen in any strata of society.

The negative perceptions society has about people needing assistance are based on a lack of knowledge of how the system really works and the people who benefit by it, Davidson says. For this reason, he feels it is part of his job to talk to local groups and organizations about his department.

It's not only those who pass judgement who Davidson will try to reach. "There's a lot of pride another, perhaps only because it's a slow time, not because of the person's qualifications, that rejection is taken as a personal judgement.

"You get into the situation where it's very destructive to your self-esteem," Davidson says, and when it comes to being able to get back on track and off welfare, self-esteem can be a very necessary ingredient.

Being on welfare can be demoralizing enough on its own, but because it's also associated with unemployment, it's made even worse.

"Our self-esteem is tied into the old work ethic—if we're not working we're not whole," he says. You're lonely, you're at home when all you're friends are working and those rejections start pil-

Job programs are beneficial only if they're voluntary and the workers are paid. Besides providing people with the necessary skills needed to find a job, the program also provides the structure that is an important part of everyone's day. People need to know they have to be at work by nine and they have a responsibility to someone other than themselves. The inherent structure of a job is a useful way to give people motivation to accomplish the tasks set out in front of them.

The department of social services can only help people if they have the time, Davidson says. The home visit is the perfect opportunity to find out what a person's needs are, besides the monetary ones, and steer them in the right direction. Yet if the workers are too busy, they might not have the time to follow up on plans or work closely with other organizations which can also help. When there are more than 100 cases to deal with, then chances are his department will simply have to revert back to "shuffling papers," something Davidson does not want to see happen. This is another reason why it is so important to make sure people don't stay on welfare for a long period of time.

However, there is the problem of children who know nothing save the welfare way of life. The child who sits on daddy's knee as he fills out his welfare application and the child who sits on daddy's knee as he drives his truck to work are both learning a social behaviour. To each, their way of life is the only one they know, and will emulate as they get older. Many children do get out of the welfare dependency, but it is harder for those who have been accustomed to it all their lives.

"We have to be careful not to encourage dependency," Davidson stresses, and that starts at any age.

He uses the example of the 16-year-old who wants to quit school because the conditions at home with his parents are unbearable. If he wants to get his own apartment, he's going to have to quit school, a sure way to decrease his chances of finding meaningful and long-term employment.

Instead of just handing him a cheque throughout highschool, the department tells him something is expected in return. If he can find a part-time job after school he should accept it, and "by all means" he should find a job in the summer so the cheques can stop for a while. Otherwise, that teenager will learn to expect a "pension" for the rest of his life.

Since the days of a guaranteed annual income are far off in the future, Davidson says we must continue helping those who are in need despite the fact that our view of the system may be tarnished by the few who abuse it. They are the minority, he says, and to base our opinion on those few would be ignoring the plight of those in real need. Yes, there are abusers, but part of his job is to find them as well as help those who aren't.

Davidson doesn't know what the future has in store for his fledgling department but as an optimist and realist combined, he is looking forward to the challenges it will offer.

Two adults living in an unheated accomodation can receive a maximum of $689 a month, plus costs for heating and health. While the image of 'welfare bum' persists, George Davidson says 'Picture anyone of us trying to live on that kind of money.'

in this county" and many people who should be receiving help either don't know it's available or are too proud to ask for it. Under the layer of optimism now present in the county as construction and employment become year-round instead of seasonal, there are many "little worlds" which many people aren't aware of. Poverty has not left Haliburton County even though there are outward signs it is diminishing.

As a society, we have decided to help those in need, Davidson said, yet many people don't understand what it is like to be on welfare, and how many other circumstances may be joining forces to hinder people from being able to stand on their own two feet. There's more to being a welfare recipient than just cashing your cheque once a month.

When people are employed and secure, it is difficult to imagine what it would be like if that job was suddenly gone. A 45-year-old man, who previously had six job offers to choose from, may now find he's having to apply at six places a day to try to find work. The divorce rate has climbed constantly, and the mother who has devoted herself to raising her children may find herself helpless to provide for them if her husband leaves her. The young man who quit school because he wasn't getting along with his parents and wanted a life on his own, may find his youthfulness and willingness to work are not considered commodities when he fills out a job application. And then there are the children who are third and fourth generation welfare recipients who know no other way of life.

"We want to see people moving back to independence," Davidson says, recognizing that to do this, his office must be more than the provider of cheques. By working closely with some of the other agencies in the county and knowing what programs are available, the social services department can be more than a bureaucratic stopping place.

Often a person who does find himself out of a job, is very optimistic he will be back to work the following week. But when one rejection starts following ing up until you feel you are personally not wanted and give up even trying to find a job. That frustration and negativity eats away at all that initial confidence and optimism. Why bother applying for a job when you know they're just going to say no? "It's like banging your head against a wall," Davidson says. "You soon stop because it becomes too painful to continue."

Davidson bases his experience from working with the unemployed in an urban centre, but he says city or village, the dynamics of unemployment are always the same.

At Kingston, he ran a job club which took severely disadvantaged people and helped give them the skills needed to find and keep a job, similar to the idea behind the Hospitality Training Centre. It was very "dynamic and action oriented and it got results." One thing to remember is that people who sign up for training programs wanted to be there. "They were motivated to go and that's really the result."

Commenting on the idea that people who receive assistance should work for their money, Davidson says "If you work for your welfare, how are you going to have the time to find a job? As a society, we're allowing people basic needs to get by while they make every effort to keep busy."

If someone takes part in a voluntary work program, one of the aims is that after it is over, the employer will offer the trainee a full-time job. Yet if you force people to do menial jobs which involve no learning and no chance of continuation, then the work is serving no purpose. Davidson doesn't think it makes any sense to send someone who is not job-ready, or who has been unemployed for a long time, out to work for no pay. "They're a danger to themselves and anyone they're working for."

Correction

A story on the expansion plans of the Haliburton Legion contained an incorrect statement. The Legion does not own the driveway between the present Legion building and the old Curry Motors body shop, but in fact owns it jointly with Curry Motors. The Legion does own the land on which the tank sits and the parking area directly behind it.

The Echo regrets the error.

Employment centre to serve needs of all residents

by MARTHA PERKINS

Staff Reporter

While the Haliburton Highlands Outreach Centre may have a new name, it will continue to do what it does best — help employers find people to work at their businesses and help people find the employment opportunity best suited to their skills.

The Haliburton County Employment Services Centre earned its new title when county council decided to take over sponsorship from the Chamber of Commerce, which established the Outreach Centre in 1976 to better service its members. The majority of the funding is provided by Canada Employment and Immigration and by accepting sponsorship, the county has agreed to cover any additional costs which may be incurred outside the year's original application for funding.

The move to county sponsorship is one that pleases everyone, especially since it re-emphasizes the belief the employment centre is to help everyone in the whole county. And by taking over the responsibility, county council proves it has the interests of every resident in mind.

"It's a positive step from the county perspective," says Warden Murray Fearrey, who attended the official "handing over the key" ceremonies at the centre last Wednesday. "It shows the importance of having an outreach centre in the county."

Chamber of Commerce manager, Shirley Rapson, agrees, saying "the Board is delighted." Because many of its members use the employment centre, there still will be a lot of contact between the chamber and the centre as to what sort of jobs are most needed, any necessary skills development area, and job opportunities. "There's certainly a great common bond in servicing the community," Rapson said.

When it comes to helping businesses find employees, the employment centre's senior project's officer is enthusiastic about what her office can do to help.

Actively seeking work

"The employer has his job listed and the people coming in are actively seeking work," says Jane Selbie. Free of charge, the employer lists his job opening with the centre, trying to be as precise as possible about what qualifications and skills are needed. The job goes on file and on the job board, where the steady flow of people looking for work can see what's available and ask questions.

The centre can then help screen the applicants for the employer, saving him time and money by referring only those people who fit the requirements and are able to do the job. Besides talking to those people who come through the door, the centre also has an active list of people looking for work, and matching the job to the skills can contact them by phone.

It's the fact they are able to provide such personal service that Selbie believes is one of the strong points of the centre. When a potential worker comes in to the centre, he registers by filling out a form with past education and work experiences. These are coded and kept on file, so when a new job comes in, placement officer Val Burch can search through the files to find those people best suited to the job. Darlene Pettes, the office's secretary/receptionist, will then phone up the job seeker and give them information about the job.

In a county the size of Haliburton, this is a tremendous service to provide since it means people looking for a job don't have to worry about coming into the office everyday. Transportation is always a problem, and if you're out of work, can be ill-afforded. This way, people from the smaller villages can save valuable time and money by cutting down on the number of trips they have to make into Haliburton Village.

"It's just not feasible for someone to trundle in from Wilberforce every day," Selbie says, adding that many employment centres have abandoned registration and work on a drop-in basis. As well, when a future employee does come into the office to see if there's work available, "it's encouraging to come to a job board and see 20 jobs listed."

Many students don't know how to do an active job search, and at the office, Selbie can provide counselling on the best ways to look for a job and then apply for it. Students hoping for summer employment should try to have something lined up by May, and if they want experience in a certain job field not available in the county, Selbie can take advantage of her link with Lindsay and Peterborough.

If someone finds they are not able to find a job over an extended length of time, Selbie can sit down with them, find out what skills they are lacking, and then find a job training program best suited to their needs. The thrust of the federal government has been to provide training programs for young people who have had difficulty finding work, since it is much easier and less costly to catch any problems at the beginning.

"For a young person who has had spotty job experience, to have a situation where they can learn on the job, they're going to have a saleable experience they can put on their resume," Selbie says. It is always hoped that after the training program, the employer will then offer the trainee a job.

"The more skills you have, the less likely you will be in the cyclical employment situation," working only a few months of the year and unable to find work for the rest, she adds.

Selbie can also make suggestions to highschool students trying to figure out what courses they should take. Working with the guidance department, she can conduct her own mini-surveys or consult the pamphlets issued by the government about future career opportunities. For instance, Selbie phoned all the organizations in the county which hire nurses, and found out that by the year 2,000, most nurses will be expected to have a degree, not a diploma. If you're young and don't have many responsibilities, it's much easier to take the extra year at university. If you're more mature, and have a home and family to take care of, it's much more difficult to pick up your roots and go to school for the degree.

Generally, the people coming in to the centre to find a job or learn about available programs are very grateful about the help the staff can provide.

"People want to be productive and working. It's very depressing to be unemployed," Selbie says. For the person who is continually out of work, the programs come as a welcome break. Unemployment insurance will pay 60 per cent of your last wages, but Selbie is not sure this is enough to allow people to comfortably live off the system. "That 40 per cent is probably the cushion that would make your life more luxurious."

But people should not just learn how to work when they get older, Selbie adds. "It's up to the parents to encourage the work ethic in a child."

All in all, Selbie, who is relatively new to the job herself, believes things won't change very much under the new title and sponsorship, but of course she hopes the office will be constantly improving to better serve its clients.

"I hope we can cut down referrals so we can send the appropriate people," she says, asking for the support of business people to give the centre as much information as possible about what sort of employee they are looking for. The more information, the less likely the centre will refer someone who is not qualified for the job.

Two smiling faces job seekers and business people have become familiar with over the last seven or eight years are those of Valerie Burch and Darlene Pettes.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Norland News

by Kelly Graham

Hello! I hope you had a fantastic week! I think I must finally say, as did the editorial page last week, that it is indeed time that the Fenelon, Haliburton hockey controversy is laid to rest. I'm sure everyone looks forward to an exciting season next year.

Jason Cook, who was recently involved in a serious motorcycle accident is still recovering in Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay. I'm sure he would appreciate any cards or messages wishing him a speedy and complete recovery. Incidentally Jason has a lot of time to kill these days and I'm sure he would appreciate any magazines you might have lying around.

Both the Save Our Schools dance and the Northern Lights Old-Timers Hockey Team dance had good turnouts. They were held on March 28 in Burnt River and Norland respectively.

Buryel Kipp, of Norland will soon be leaving on a very exciting vacation. On April 19 Mrs. Kipp and her sister, Verna Green of Thornhill will embark on a three week tour of China and Japan. The lucky ladies will see Hong Kong, Tokyo and the Great Wall of China. I'm sure they will have a wonderful time.

Rudy and Ruth Janke, their mother Frances Gunn, their children Paula, Colleen, Derek and Heidi and their grandson Shawn all recently returned from a two and half week trip to Tarpon Springs, Florida. They stayed in a trailer they own down there and enjoyed lovely weather the entire time. What a terrible shock for them when they returned home!

Well that's all I have for this week. Have a good one and remember, criticism is the disapproval of people, not for having faults but for having faults that are different from our own.

It was Daffodil Day for Cancer in Haliburton on Friday. Ready to deliver the fresh flowers throughout the community are, from left: Betty Salvatori, Mae Jones, Darlene Fearrey, Joan Brown, Nancy Brink of Nancy's Flowers, and 'Tiny.' The cancer fund raising campaign continues throughout April.

Luncheon meeting hears speaker on foot care

Funk & Wagnall's dictionary describes the foot as "the terminal section of the limb of a vertebrate animal, upon which it rests in standing or moving." On Friday April 24 at our "Welcome Home, Snowbirds" meeting our guest speaker Brian Cragg, chir-

Talking books popular COUNTY LIBRARY

by Joel Levis

Heard a good book lately? That's not really as odd a statement as it may at first appear to be, especially if you have spent any of your valuable time in an airport somewhere wondering why you are here and your baggage isn't or worse, where your baggage is truth actually going. You've seen those handsome displays of cassette tapes with your favorite book being read to you and wished that there had been room for your walkman. Even long trips in the car might be made less tedious if there was a book that you could actually listen to as the miles rolled by.

There is no limit to the usefulness of these materials. All you need is a standard cassette tape records - walkman, stereo, car radio unit, whatever - and you are ready to go!

Now you can borrow these titles through your local branch of the Haliburton County Public Library. Popular fiction, old classics, favorite sea tales, self-improvement books are all to be had by asking local staff who have a list of the current holdings for you to choose from. And we can loan others from other libraries as well!

These are professional tapes read by experienced readers and actors; some are abridged but most are the complete work down to the last sentence.

Highlands Little Theatre Group gets ready for a play within a play

The Highlands Little Theatre group is busy rehearsing its spring show these days, and if the enthusiasm of the cast is any indication, the play should be a hit with local audiences.

Entitled 'Play On', it centres on the trials and tribulations of a community theatre group as it rehearses a new play and finally brings it to the stage for dress rehearsal and opening night. The play within the play is a murder mystery, and since it has never before been produced, the playwright keeps trying to rewrite it as rehearsals are underway. Needless to say, everything that can go wrong, does go wrong in dress rehearsal and on opening night. The scenery falls down, the sound effects go awry — in short, all of the nightmares that haunt any amateur theatre group about to risk their egos before their friends and community — come true.

Director Bonnie Fitzgerald said her aim when she took on the directing task was to ensure that the cast had fun with the play, and they certainly appear to be doing just that. The cast of 'Play On' is Chris Lynd, Michael Gilhooley, Brenda Ellis, Maureen O'Hara, Debra Dart, Dale McConnell, Nancy Robichaud, Anne Creelman, Phil Taylor and Patty Gilhooley.

The production will come to the stage at Haliburton Highschool for a three night run on May 14, 15 and 16.

A play within a play...

Gilhooley, Brenda Ellis, Maureen O'Hara, Debra Dart, Dale McConnell, Nancy Robichaud, and in front, Phil Taylor and Ann Creelman. The play will be performed on the long weekend in May.

Students' show opens

GUILD NOTES

by Virginia Muenzel

The Students' Art Show opened Friday night April 3 to a well attended presentation of scholarship awards. A total of 32 scholarships and 35 honourable mentions were distributed by councillor Dorothy Baker with the help of the new curator, Elene Freer. Children and parents alike will enjoy the bright colours and inventive art in this show. While there, also visit the Waiting Room where the UNICEF children's art show from the global collection of Shankar of India is being exhibited. At the same time, the artwork of the Minden students is being shown at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery. The shows will continue until April 15.

Is everyone ready for "A Time For All Things?" Your project, along with a short biography must be turned in by April 13. The show opens April 18. Hopefully, all the Guild groups will be represented.

The big news from the weaving group is that they are arranging to have the use of the 100 inch loom this year. It should be set up on or about May 1st at the Haliburton Museum. The loom will be in our area for one year, therefore the weavers are expecting to accomplish some wonderful work such as blankets, rugs, coverlets and tablecloths. If you are one of many folks who wonder just where is the museum, proceed north from the junction of 118 and 121 for a distance of about 1 km. Then, just as you are leaving the lakes shore you will see a museum sign. Turn left and drive through Bay Shore Acres until you come to the museum grounds. The weavers hope to see many people turn up to watch them working on this marvelous loom.

May will be here before we know it, and the brunch and Four Season's Fashion Show at Wig-a-mog Inn on May 3. The cost of the tickets is $13. All fashions modeled at this show will be hand made by Guild members. Those participating in the show should have their garments at the Gallery on April 27 and 28 between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. to be fitted to models. Descriptive cards will be available. This event will coincide with the Garments By Design show at the Gallery from May 9. Fashion show tickets are available at the Gallery along with tickets for a draw on a beautiful winter white shawl woven by Marion Langdon. Shawl tickets are $1 each or five for $4. The draw will take place at the fashion show.

Tickets are now on sale for the upcoming Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts Volunteer's Night. This year we will be enjoying an evening at the newly renovated Birch Point Lodge. Tickets are $13 per person. Refreshments will be served from 7 p.m. until dinner at 7:30. Entertainment will be provided by David Anderson and the Whole Loaf Theater. There are only 100 tickets, so I suggest you get yours soon.

There are several Guild groups we never hear from in the Guild news. Please let one of the writers know what your group is up to and we'll see it gets into the paper. I'll have the column for April. My number is 754-2181.

Margaret Teljeur, Danielle Greaves, Jason Smith. Back row: Lori Card, Melissa Bain. The youngsters' scholarships are for art courses at the Haliburton School of Fine Arts this summer. A show of their work continues at the Gallery all this month.

Special church service to be held

GOODERHAM NEWS

by Vera Riel

March sure went out like a lion and April also came in like one so I hope we will have some nice weather from now on.

It's nice to hear Mrs. Myrtle Dewey is home from hospital. I hope she continues to improve.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Andrews had his mother from Toronto visiting with them this week. They took her home on Friday.

The Seniors meeting was cancelled due to bad weather this week, but the Euchre was held, with most lone hands for the men going to Art Holz and womens was Irma Dunford from Wilberforce. The mens high score was Hubert Dunford and womens high went to Ann Frankes. The boobie prize was won by Bea Hillis.

Ann Hankins and Vince Billings were the lucky winners of the door prizes. Mrs. Gladys Hunter is home from Florida.

Be sure and watch the small children with so much water around.

Best wishes to Gwen Taylor who had a birthday on Saturday.

By Mary Hadley
The U.C.W. met at the home of Margaret Pickens last Tuesday afternoon. Despite the heavy snowfall ushering in April, six ladies were present. Margaret gave an informative and inspirational talk on the Psalms, dealing specially with her favourite the Twenty-third Psalm. As hostess she served dessert before the meeting.

A special church service is being held in the Community Centre at 9 a.m. on Good Friday. This is sponsored by both our local churches. Special music has been arranged, including numbers from the Wilberforce United Church choir. Pastor Sauve of the local Pentecostal Church and Maurice Bradley, minister of the United Church will bring messages. Offerings from this service will go to the Haliburton Hospital Expansion Fund.

Everyone is invited to this first ecumenical service in our community.

Congratulations to Marg and Doug Bates on the arrival last Thursday morning of their second son, Ryan William, a little brother for Tommy.

Our snow birds are beginning to arrive from the sunny south. Mary and Ed Bacon chose the wrong time - with the last snow and found driving conditions less than desirable. Gladys Hunter returned last Sunday. We welcome them back.

New real estate office established

WILBERFORCE NEWS

by Winnie Schofield

Bill Smith, proprietor of a popular tourist lodge at Elephant Lake, has taken on a new business. Bill has opened up an office across from the Red and White store in Wilberforce where he will represent the Re/Max Real Estate. Re/Max purchased a franchise in Haliburton County one year ago and now has offices in Minden, Haliburton and Wilberforce. It is expected that three local people will find work as salespersons during the summer months, at which time the office will be open from 9 to 5 seven days a week. Good luck to Bill Smith and his new enterprise.

Here is some good news that we neglected to write about some time ago.

March 2, 1987. Thomas Russel Blake arrived at the Oshawa General Hospital weighing 4 lb. 12 oz. His grandmother is Adele Barnes of Wilberforce and his paternal grandparents are Russel and Ada Benson of Lindsay. Congratulations to all.

This has been an eventful week with postal rates rising to 36 cents, daylight saving time stealing an hour from us and Canada winning the World Championship Curling honours. The new 36 cent stamp is a re-issue of the old Parliament Building stamp. Deeper colours have brightened the picture and the trees in the foreground have been treated to Autumn colours.

Even if you have no time to read you should visit the Monmouth Library to see the magic work of John Cross. Using a Spring theme John has created, with clever fashioning and delicate colours, an array of Spring blossoms that bring to mind all the promises of the coming season. The Library staff is indebted to John Cross for this latest contribution.

Elsewhere in this newspaper is a birth notice for Matthew Scott Valeriani. Proud grandfather, Don Fevreau, says he will be pleased to show the videos of his grandson, anytime, anywhere.

Enthusiasm at the Bowling Alley continues to mount until there is a serious threat that the Topaz will be unable to retain last place in League standing. Captain Sandy Smith just couldn't resist a 244 game, Ida Holmes bowled a 241 and a 203 and Marian Donovan, who has not learned how to miss, brought in a 217 and a 239. These players must learn to control their skill.

Maple Syrup Festival is coming on April 18 with a flea market, pancakes and syrup and a dance in the evening.

A rummage sale will be held at St. Margaret's church Saturday April 11 from 10 a.m. to noon.

The hockey season comes to an end with congratulations to the Wilberforce Atoms and the Wilberforce Pee Wees for finishing as "A" Championship winners. The annual Minor Hockey banquet will take place on April 25 at the Lloyd Watson Centre and everyone is invited to attend. An election of officers will take place at this time. Come out and enjoy a pot luck supper.

Church's history saluted Nominations are all in

by Millie Moss

The last day of March and we get winter all over again.

Some one hundred years ago a Mr. Pusey built a lovely little church, St. John the Baptist, at Irondale and services were held for all denominations. Then in the year 1905 the Anglicans purchased the property and have held it since that time with other services being conducted from time to time. A few weeks ago a special service was held to honour the church that had been standing for the people these past one hundred years. Captain Paul Thoms took the service and there were two organists present, a young lady, Marianne Tucker from Charriville United Church and Mrs. Jean Rumble, organist at Headford United Church. Harold Carr, who is about 83 years of age, read Scripture and Brenda Simmonds read as well as played guitar.

It was a beautiful service that kept to a minimum with preference going to the beautiful old hymns which were joyfully sung. The church was filled to capacity with extra chairs being brought in to take the overflow. There were many old clippings, books, marriage, birth and confirmation certificates on view. Many of them re the Simmonds family. Emma and Wilfred Hancock's marriage certificate was there as well as the 60th wedding certificate of Mr. and Mrs. Hadley of Gooderham who were present for the service. Guests were there from Kinmount, Gooderham, Stayner, Guilford, Richmond Hill, Vaughan and other local areas. Mr. John Lonsdale was present with his sister-in-law, Joan Lonsdale who has been visiting recently from England. Betty Lonsdale remained home due to a bad cold.

Reeve Bob and Mrs.

Audrey Vick of Gelert were there as well as William Scott M.P. and his son Scott. Refreshments were served later and many good visits were enjoyed.

Just one sad note of an otherwise happy day: it was announced that Howard Buckman, a great supporter of the church, died Saturday night March 28. His wife, May has been active as a summertime organist.

Sincere sympathy at this time to family and friends of Harvey Collison, William Norgate who died in Florida and Clara (Ash) Hillyard who died in Harbour Grace, Newfoundland.

Get well wishes to Bob Hollobon, Helen Graham, Mom Pyke, Jesse and Hilda Buxey, Donna Stroud, Betty Davey, Scott Spencer, Gordon Campbell, Ernie Hills, Herb Wilson, Bertha Stata, Ida and Clyde Pardy.

Results of the euchre games at St. James Hall, Tuesday March 31: mens high, Jason Scarlett who also held most lone hands, mens low, Jack Hills, ladies high, Aileen Brown, ladies low, Mary Curtis. There were eleven tables.

The Senior Citizens card games held at the Kinmount Railway Station, Thursday April 2, ladies high, Ann Rivers, ladies low, Margaret Kylie, mens high, Lil Platt, mens low, Bob Allen, lone hands, Margaret Hancock.

The Senior Citizen's Drop In Centre is now open every day from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Kinmount Railway Station. Everyone from 50 years of age and on is most cordially invited to come out and enjoy the facilities. More bridge and cribbage players are needed and if you have any ideas to help get things going, crafts of all kinds, i.e. knitting, crocheting, quilting, anything, you will be very welcome. Also, if you have any items you could donate it would be very much appreciated. Come out and enjoy!

On Saturday April 18 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. there will be a pancake breakfast with sausages and maple syrup with extra pancakes free for a cost of three dollars each with proceeds to go to the Cobocok Navy League Cadets. Place: Cobocok Legion Hall.

Also at the Cobocok Legion, Branch 519, on Saturday April 25 beginning at 9 p.m. members and guests are invited to dance to the forties and up music to the returning Frank Howard Orchestra. There is a total of one hundred and fifty tickets on sale.

Congratulations to Jodie-Mae Perry who recently won the gold medal in gymnastics in Lindsay. Jodie-Mae is a granddaughter to Mary and Mike Hartin of Kinmount.

A number of local folks spent Thursday evening, April 2, at a demonstration of the usage of microwave ovens in Fenelon Falls. I'm told it was a very enjoyable evening.

April 24 at the Royal Canadian Legion in Kinmount there will be a dinner meeting beginning at 12 noon. The meeting will follow the meal beginning at approximately 2:15 p.m. Guest speaker is Brian Cragg, Chiropodist, will speak on "Foot Care". Dinner reservations are required. Please call 457-2941 by April 15. If you wish to attend the meeting only, please be there by 1:15 p.m. Everyone welcome.

Well folks, stay well and happy, read the Echo, give me a call at 488-2353 and pray for sunshine - lots of it!

CARNARVON NEWS

by Ann McKay

Thanks to all the people who phoned me regarding the Holiday scam that seems to have blighted our area. It's also very pleasing to know the number of people from every area in the county who read the news column. I am very sorry for the lady who in the excitement of a "free" holiday gave in her credit card number and was less a chunk of money at her bank. Please be warned - ignore the card and don't call the number in the States.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hutchinson of Toronto have moved into their summer home as permanent residents. Murray, who recently retired from Ontario Housing, was given a retirement party in Toronto. Attending from here were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carpenter and children and Mrs. Velda Harrison.

We send our best wishes to Mr. Wes Clark who has been a patient for some time now in Haliburton Hospital.

Spending the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Garth Windsor were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Swarty of Scarborough and family, Mr. and Mrs. David Johnston of Haileybury and children. Spending the end of a month holiday here was Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Windsor and family of Kelowna, B.C.

The next meeting of the U.C.W. will be on May 6 with a theme of "Bloom Where You're Planted". All ladies and men are invited to bring a perennial garden plant.

LEGION NEWS

by Gerald Irish

Terry Johnson, a grade eleven student at the Haliburton High School, attended the general meeting last Thursday. You remember Terry, the young lady the Legion assisted financially on her trip to Ottawa to participate in the programme, Encounters with Canada. Terry's brief but enthusiastic report outlined her activities and learnings while there. She saw Brain Mulroney, visited with M.P. Bill Scott, attended sessions of parliament and drama classes and learned much about people from all across this great country.

It was interesting to hear her state, "I know what it is to be a Canadian. I am not just a young person from Haliburton County. I am also a Canadian." Terry also thanked the members of Branch 129 very much for their financial assistance in making this dream become a reality.

D.V.A. representative, Gary Barker, was unable to visit Haliburton last month because of the heavy storm and poor road conditions. Gary's next visit is scheduled for the last Tuesday in April, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. If you have any problems or questions before that, contact Branch 129 Service Officer, Comrade Lloyd Whittaker, at 457-1093.

Congratulations to Judy Thibadeau on winning the Jackpot Bingo last Wednesday night. Although the jackpot has gone, neither one of the two snowballs has. These are both ready to go and would be worth winning. Come out and try your luck.

Ways and Means chairman, comrade Ed Pickard, has planned a ham and beef roll, in the Club Room on Easter Saturday afternoon. I hope to see you there.

On Saturday April 4, 16 teams from Kinmount, Bancroft, Coe Hill, Cannington, Cobocok, Haliburton and elsewhere, competed in the Johnny Maughan Open Dart Tournament at Branch 129. The team from Coe Hill made a clean sweep of all awards. They were team, doubles and singles champions. During the course of play three perfect scores of 180 were recorded. Chris Briggs and Barry Robertson of Haliburton and Mike Grogan of Bancroft pulled off this amazing feat. Congratulations to Branch 129 Sports officer, comrade Reg Crockett, on organizing and running such a successful tournament. Thanks also to Jack Morrison for helping Reg throughout the day.

This Saturday's 50-50 draw was won by Betty Billingham and was worth over $50. Congratulations, Betty. When is it my turn to win?

The general meeting in April was also nominations night for the officers of Branch 129. All but two offices could be contested. Nominated as Branch 129 secretary is comrade Jack Bassett and comrade Wally Chambers as Branch treasurer. All nominees have a month to decide whether to stand or decline. Here is the list of nominees for the various offices; recorded as they were nominated: President - Joan Irish, Doug Pritchard, Mabel Brannigan, Fred Knight. 1st Vice President - Gerry Irish, Allin Cooper, Mabel Brannigan, Doug Pritchard, Fred Knight. 2nd Vice President - Gerry Irish, Wayne Wood, Sylvia Sisson, Earl Shipley. 3rd Vice President - Steve Giles, Reg Crockett, Irv Chambers, Lloyd Whittaker. Sargent-at-Arms - Irv Chambers, Jim Hobson. Executive - (six to be elected) - Steve Giles, Irene Higgins, Wally Chambers, Reg Crockett, Bruce McKay, Ed Pickard, Ken Fieldhouse, Earl Shipley, Lloyd Whittaker, Grenville Draper, Allin Cooper, Sylvia Sisson, Irv Chambers, Gerry Irish, Wayne Wood, Fred Knight.

Auditors - Dawson, Gray, Dart, Mike Jones, Barry Robertson. Nominations were conducted smoothly by Zone Commander comrade Mel Robertson. Comrade Mel also informed the members that such a large number of nominees is indicative of a healthy branch. Life, ordinary and associate members, please exercise your right to vote on election night, May 7. At that general meeting there will be the election of officers and the joint installation of officers for Branch 129 and the Ladies Auxiliary, followed by a Pot Luck meal. Don't forget your membership card must be shown in order to be eligible to vote. So bring along your card and something for the pot luck - May 7 at 8 p.m.

Haliburton's Midget Hockey Team is playing for the All-Ontario Championship against a team from Wheatly. To hire a comfortable bus, pay for motel rooms and meals for an entire team is a large expenditure. To assist the young men representing Haliburton your Legion donated $500 to the Midget team. We wish the team every success. The team is wearing Haliburton Legion sweaters.

On Friday evening, April 3, 23 Legionaires gathered at the funeral home in Minden, to pay their last respects and say goodbye to Comrade Bert Howe. Our thoughts and prayers are with his wife Eva and with Bert's family.

We were all shocked and saddened at the sudden passing of Marg Sproats. Marg and Rod have been dear friends of many in Legion and supporters of Branch 129. Our deepest sympathies go to Rod and his son. Marg will be greatly missed.

Seventy years ago this Thursday, April 9, the Canadian Corps stormed a long hill known as Vimy Ridge. This vital assault was one of the turning points in W.W.I. Many, many Canadian lives were lost at Vimy. We will remember them.

Mass has gentle spirit

CHURCH NOTES

by June Devolin

This week I would like to report on two spiritual activities that I think might be of interest to my readers.

On March 26 at 7:30 p.m. Marie Wallace and I attended a Healing Mass at Our Lady of Fatima Roman Catholic Church in Minden. This was the first mass of this kind that has been held at the Minden R.C. Church. Approximately 125 to 150 people attended.

A prayer group from Peterborough were present and assisted with the mass. The Rev. Clarke Hudson was the celebrant and Father Don Kroetch from the Bobcaygeon - Fenelon Falls Parish assisted. Lay people were also involved in this healing mass.

During Father Clarke's homily he reminded the congregation that we should all be part of the healing ministry. He also reflected on the message of the theme hymn "Healing's Just Another Word for Love."

The group "Harmony" ministered in music, singing a number of Father Carey Landry's songs. There was a gentle, sweet spirit in the place and I feel sure that many people received healings. Hopefully this healing mass was just the beginning, because surely there is a great need for this kind of ministry today.

I am always interested in opportunities for the youth so I was pleased to hear about a retreat that some of our local teenagers attended during the March Break.

Andrea Burton, president of Haliburton Hi-Y was one of these young people attending this retreat. I am including a brief excerpt from the interesting report that she gave to me. If you would like a photocopy of Andrea's report, please call her or I.

"During March break I had the opportunity to spend a week in Owen Sound for the ISCF Conference. ISCF stands for Inter-School Christian Fellowship and is a nation-wide School Youth Group. March Break Conference is an annual event and the highlight of ISCF's year. March Break Conference (MBC'87) was great! I made so many friends and had a wonderful time. Even though it was hard to say good-bye, we know we'll see each other again soon. I would encourage any youth to go. It's a great opportunity to have some fun and meet some super, special people."

Two clinics are on Wednesday

DORSET NEWS

by Phyllis Briscoe

It came in like a lamb and stayed a lamb most of the month so we guess it had to go out like a lion. But what a slap in the face to have all this snow the first week in April. We know that it can't last too long but this is slight comfort when you have to shovel your way out in the morning. The trees and bushes are beautiful but the limbs are so bent down with the weight of snow that one wonders if they will be able to survive. Snuggle up to the fire until spring arrives, in reality, disregarding dates on the calendar. It's for sure to come eventually.

Bas and Lorraine Weath-erall are home after spending a month in Windsor.

April birthdays coming up will be celebrated by Jeanette Large on the 9th, Bev Robinson on the 11th, Tyler Hughes will be eight on the 11th and Robbie Drebbitt will be nine on the 11th. A very happy day to all celebrants. Ted and Gloria Morris celebrated their 32nd wedding anniversary on April 2. Congratulations to the Morris's.

The group that attend the Aqua Fitness classes at Hidden Valley were cancelled out for the first two sessions due to various reasons, but should be in full swing by now. The Dorset Social Club was also cancelled for last week due to the nasty weather. We don't have many cancellations but occasionally Mother Nature is the boss.

The offertory from the combined service at Port Cunnington last week of the three churches of the Anglican Lake of Bays Mission was donated to the Boy Scouts of Zambia, who are in great need of uniforms and equipment.

There are two clinics at the Dorset Public School next Wednesday April 15. The foot clinic in the morning and the clinic for children from 24-60 months of age for Vaccination against Haemophilus Meningitis from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. The latter clinic is free. There is a $2 charge for the foot clinic.

Intended for Last Week

We welcome home Bea and Len Seedhouse who spent the winter months in Florida. Also home from Florida is Joyce McKay and myself, having gone by automobile with Irene and Jack Clayton to Redington Shores for three weeks at the Marlin Apartments on the Gulf. Needless to say we had a great time, lots of sunshine, a day at the dog races, a Blue Jay's ball game and a very patient driver to take three ladies on shopping sprees. We visited Norm and Della McGuire and Mildred Richardson. All seemed well and happy. We enjoyed some excellent food, which included Calico

Yes, there is definitely something "fishy" about this week's column. I always think that fish is something we don't eat enough of. My girlfriend's father used to tell me that fish was 'brain food'!

1/2 tsp. salt
dash of tabasco sauce
paprika
chopped parsley

Cut frozen fillets into serving-size portions. Place in a single layer in a well-greased baking dish, 12x8x2 inches. Combine remaining ingredients except paprika. Spread sour cream mixture over fish. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a moderate oven (350) for 25 to 30 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Garnish with parsley. Serves 6.

BAKED FISH AND VEGETABLES

2 tbsp. butter
1 cup regular rice
1/4 cup thinly-sliced green onions
1/4 cup butter
12 small white onions or 6 medium, cut in quarters
2 cloves garlic, crushed
2 green peppers, slivered
6 medium carrots, sliced on diagonal
2 stalks celery, sliced on diagonal
1 tsp. flour
1 tsp. basil
1/2 tsp. oregano
1-1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
water

juice of 1 lemon
2 lb. fillets of sole or other white fish
salt and pepper
sliced mozzarella cheese
3 tbsp. butter
1 tsp. lemon juice
2 tbsp. minced parsley

Heat 2 tbsp. butter in heavy saucepan. Add rice and green onions and cook gently, stirring, until rice is lightly browned. Add water (2-1/2 cups) and 1/2 tsp. salt and cook, covered until rice is done (20-25 minutes.) Heat oven to 400. Butter a 9x12 baking dish. Spread half of rice down either side of baking dish, leaving 3 inches between 2 rows of rice. Heat 1/4 cup butter in large heavy saucepan. Add white onions and cook until golden. Add garlic, green peppers, carrots and celery and cook gently, stirring, 5 minutes. Add flour, basil, oregano, 1-1/2 tsp. salt and 1/4 tsp. pepper and mix well. Add water to juice of 1 lemon to make 1-1/2 cups liquid and add to pan. Stir to blend, bring to boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Sprinkle pieces of sole generously with salt and pepper. Cut into serving size pieces. Cut thinly sliced cheese into the same number of pieces and about the same size (you will need about 6 slices.) Lay a piece of fish then a slice of cheese over-lapping on top of rice. Repeat until all fish is used. Melt 3 tbsp. butter and stir in 1 tbsp. lemon juice and drizzle over fish and cheese. Pour vegetables and their sauce into the middle of the pan between the rows of rice. Sprinkle with parsley. Cover pan with foil and bake 15 minutes. Uncover and bake about 10 minutes more or until fish flakes easily with a fork. Serves 6.

SOLE WITH SPINACH

2 lb. frozen sole fillets, thawed
salt and pepper
1 bag of fresh spinach
1 tsp. finely-chopped onion
1 tsp. butter
1/2 tsp. salt
dash of pepper
1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup flour

Heat oven to 425. Butter a 12x7x2 inch baking dish. Lay half of fish fillets in bottom of pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cook spinach according to package directions. Drain well. Add onion, butter, 1/2 tsp. salt and dash of pepper. Spread the spinach on top of fillets in pan and top with remaining fillets. Heat 1/4 cup butter in saucepan. Sprinkle in flour and let bubble up. Remove from heat and add milk all at once. Stir to blend. Stir in 1 tsp. salt, 1/8 tsp. pepper and mustard. Return to moderate heat and cook, stirring constantly until boiling, thickened and smooth. Pour over fish. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake for 20 minutes or until fish flakes easily with fork. Serve immediately. Serves 4 to 6.

DORSET NEWS

Bean Soup, delicious biscuits and honey in Tennessee and blackberry cobbler in Georgia. We all over indulged but what's a holiday for but to cater to one's fancies. It's good to be home but we would like to see sunshine instead of clouds. But the sun was prevalent for many weeks in late February and March so I guess all good things come to an end, including happy holidays.

We missed some March birthdays. Audrey Clayton had her first one on the 20th, Phyllis McKay also celebrated on the 20th and Blanche Clayton on the 28th. Many more happy ones to them all.

The Foot Clinic will be held on Wednesday April 15 at the Dorset School. Call 766-2237 for an appointment.

We are sorry to report the death of Mrs. George Russell of Huntsville on March 2 at Huntsville Hospital. Mrs. Russell was the former Olive Crozier and was born and raised at Paint Lake. After George and Olive were married they owned and operated a tourist business and Post Office at Russell's Landing, now known as Mountain Trout House, from 1925 to 1953. As well as her husband George, Olive leaves four daughters, 10 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren. They sympathize to the community is extended to the family.

The robins are here in all their glory. We hope they haven't jumped the gun. And speaking of being ahead of time, this is the week-end we spring forward one hour. So Saturday night, April 4 turn your clocks ahead one hour and you won't be late for church Sunday morning.

The Community Centre Building Fund 50-50 draw was held last Saturday, the winner being Glenda Jarvis of Stratford. Another draw is to be held at the end of June, the tickets being on sale from April 1 at the various businesses in the community or any member of the committee as well as at the Township office. Your continued support will be appreciated. Every little bit helps.

The Anglican Lake of Bays Mission held their fifth Sunday get-together at St. James at Port Cunningham. All three churches were well represented. After the communion service, the extensive work that the members have done in their basement, was viewed with great admiration. This was followed with a lunch at the Lodge, the guest bringing sandwiches and the hosts supplying desserts. Due to some technical problems the film session planned was cut short.

On Wednesday April 15 Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit will hold a special Haemophilus Vaccine Clinic from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Dorset Public School. All children 24-60 months of age should be vaccinated for protection from Haemophilus Meningitis. Children in this age range attending nursery school or day care are at particular risk of contracting the disease.

April is Cancer month and the volunteers will be paying you a visit.

Jean Murney, F5 zone commander and member of #52 branch, Peterborough, shines the shoes of F4 zone commander Gwen Cox, a member of the #129 Haliburton branch. The occasion was the March 29 launching of a $1 million campaign by branches of the Ontario Command of the Royal Canadian Legion for Sunnybrook Medical Centre in Toronto, where more than 550 veterans are permanently cared for and thousands of others receive medical treatment annually. The shoe shine units were designed especially for Legion members to sell in their home communities as one of the fund raising activities for the Sunnybrook campaign.

Soloist's music much appreciated

SENIOR LEAGUE

by Pearl Lyle

Dear Readers, is that not a nice winter day? March has surely gone out like a lion.

The Church service on Sunday evening was conducted by Rev. J. Burgess and Mrs. Burgess. We were pleasantly surprised by having Heather Bowron (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bowron) sing us two solos which were really nice. Everyone present really appreciated it very much and were delighted that she will be coming again. Thank you Heather.

It's nice to have Edna Cowan back after a two week visit with relatives in Scarborough.

Lorne Brohm and Cecil were here on Monday to see their father Charlie Brohm who is still quite ill.

We had the Silvert's people here on Monday. Everyone seemed glad to have them.

I am sorry to report Mrs. Simmons and Helen Brown on the sick list and hope they will soon be well again. I am glad to say Winnie Barnum is feeling much better and able to be out and around. She had her son Terry from Haliburton and her sister and husband Mr. and Mrs.

Cameron of Peterborough to visit with her on the weekend.

Our movies on Monday night were "Sail Away" and "Ponies of Mik-laengi". They were quite enjoyable.

Mrs. Shuyler is home again after a lengthy stay in hospital. We are glad to see her feeling better. George and Jean Hewitt came to call on folks on Monday.

Our service Tuesday morning was conducted by Captain Thoms from Kinmount Anglican Church.

When it comes to doing something for somebody, some folk stop at nothing!

Happy birthday to Cory Chiasson on Sunday April 12. Clint Archer on Tuesday April 14, Hazel Austen Tuesday April 14 and Jennifer Packard on Wednesday April 15.

A belated happy birthday to Sylvia Howard who's birthday was Thursday April 2.

Congratulations to Sheila and Joseph Graham on their recent engagement.

Sincere sympathy to the family and friends of Bert Howe, Robert Peacock, Archie Williamson and Margaret Sproats.

I was told that several people have seen flocks of wild geese on the way north.

We are sorry to hear that Sis Gillis is having back problems and hope she is feeling better soon.

Hint for the week: When cooking stuffed spare ribs, roll them up and place in a small round pan. Wet a slice of bread and press it down on top of the ribs and cover with a lid. The meat won't over-cook and dry out.

Paul and Jan Aggett attended the funeral of Roger Aggett in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, recently.

Craig, Lin and Jordan Morrison of Toronto visited with Alice Morrison.

Sincere sympathy to the Spike Moxams on the loss of his mother recently.

The Thursday afternoon card party winners at St. Paul's Anglican Church were the following: lone hands, Vera Ward (on a cut), others were Greta Alsop, Eleanor Pye, Lil Porter (man's) and Marg McAffee.

Bill and Elizabeth Carroll became proud grandparents recently. A son was born to Pam and Jose Peleato of Ottawa.

Collin Hewitt of Fort Francis visited his mother Joyce Hewitt recently.

The Minden Women's Institute meeting will be on Wednesday April 15 in the Common Room at the Library/Cultural Centre at 2 p.m. All ladies are welcome.

That's all for this week. Drive with care and watch for the children getting on and off the school buses. I hope to see you all next week.

Syrup yields low again

COBOCONK

by Sheila Lake

I hope our time is all gone by the time this is in print. We sure got a last (hopefully) blast on Tuesday, didn't we?

There are a lot of sick folk in town and we want to wish them a speedy recovery. Ethel Farrow went by ambulance to Ross Memorial Hospital on Monday. Lillian Tufts also went to hospital in Lindsay for surgery this week. Maizie Kelly, a former Coby lady now living in Lindsay, is back in hospital. Maizie lost one leg some years ago, and I'm told her other leg was amputated on Thursday. A card to Ross Memorial hospital to these dear folks would brighten their days.

You will be regulated in the new Daylight Saving time by now. I for one, enjoy being up earlier as the sun is up so early now. Linda Godwin and Timmy are home after a vacation in Mexico.

Blair and Marilyn Lake and his Mom, Sheila Lake of Richmond Hill were weekend visitors of Coby

Lake. Mrs. Pearl Brohm of Norland visited Mrs. Coby Lake on Friday. Mrs. Lake has had a flu bug this week but is some better.

The maple syrup producers are having another bad season. Last year was a poor crop and it looks like this season is not much better. Nights must be frosty, with sunny warm days for sap to run.

Sympathy to the family of Gordon Downes, who died this past week.

Mrs. Annie Reilly is staying with her son Danny and family in the Cobourg area until her health improves.

Remember to welcome the Cancer volunteers when they call. This is daffodil and cancer month. Lela Heusman visited her cousins Blanche Hopkins in Lindsay last week.

I hope you are having a good day and have your rake ready to clean up the dead grass. It should be peeping up by now!

A lot of events were cancelled last week due to snow. Trust this week will be better!

Graduation plans begin

HHSS highlights

by Dennis Roberts

Graduation plans are starting to get underway. Graduation pictures were taken last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday by appointment. Students had a choice to get their pictures taken in a graduation gown or without one, and students could also get group portraits done with their friends.

noon at a cost of $6.40 per person. The meeting of Haliburton County Home Support Services will follow (including our guest speaker's presentation) at 1:15 p.m.

Dinner reservations are required. Please phone our office at 457-2941 by April 15 for reservations. If you are planning to attend the meeting only, no reservations are required.

Plan to attend and bring a friend. Everyone is welcome.

tively. Preliminary data for January to October 1986 show that restaurant, caterer and tavern receipts totalled $10,836 million, an increase of 10.4 percent compared to the same period in 1985, and an increase of 18.7 percent compared to the same period in 1984.

These figures are proof that our government has created a climate of confidence for the tourism industry. It is becoming evident that it is false and misleading to claim that this same government wants to interfere with the growth of this sector by applying nationwide measures such as the sales tax on gasoline and diesel fuel, measures which are necessary to control the deficit. It should also be noted that the deficit, which is $32.3 billion for 1986-87, would be about $40 billion if we had let it continue grow at the rate it grew under the previous government.

Students Council also sent out a sheet to the grade 12 and 13 students, asking them where they would like the graduation dinner and dance to be.

The Spring Prom is also coming up on Thursday April 16, and all students will be dressed semi-formal; guys must wear a tie. At the Prom there will be refreshments and snacks and featuring the rock band, The Device. The Prom costs $4 per person or $7 per couple, and starts at 8:15 p.m.

Students Council hopes all students will attend and have a good time.
